THINGS TO KNOW

NIKKI M. MASCAU, REPORTER

I love taking long walks around our fair city. Once, when I lived in Harlem, I walked from 149th Street to Battery Park, a journey of more than 11 miles traversed solely along the Hudson River Greenway. There is a decades-long hope that a 32.5-mile greenway will eventually loop all around Manhattan, and city officials exclusively shared their recommendations for making it a reality with Metro. METRO.USLIMO COMPANY OPERATOR
CHARGED WITH HOMICIDE

The operator of a limousine company that owned the vehicle involved in a crash that killed 20 people in upstate New York was taken into custody and charged with criminally negligent homicide, New York State Police said on Wednesday. Nauman Hussain, the operator of Prestige Limousine, was taken into custody following a traffic stop near Albany, police said in a statement. He was charged in connection with the deadly crash. The company's lawyer, Lee Kindlon, told a news conference on Wednesday that Hussain's girlfriend and brother were at the police barracks earlier for some "initial questioning." It was not immediately clear if other family members were questioned. The vehicle, carrying 17 people on their way to a birthday party on Saturday, ran a stop sign at a highway intersection in Schoharie, about 40 miles west of Albany, police and the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) said. It crashed into an unoccupied parked car and two pedestrians before coming to a rest in a shallow ravine, officials said, killing the driver, all 17 passengers and the two pedestrians.

AMAZON AI TOOL SHOWED BIAS AGAINST WOMEN

Amazon.com Inc.'s machine-learning specialists uncovered a big problem: their new recruiting engine did not like women. The team had been building computer programs since 2014 to review job applicants' resumes with the aim of mechanizing the search for top talent, five people familiar with the effort told Reuters. Automation has been key to Amazon's e-commerce dominance, be it inside warehouses or driving pricing decisions. The company's experimental hiring tool used artificial intelligence to give job candidates scores ranging from one to five stars — much like shoppers rate products on Amazon, some of the people said. "Everyone wanted this holy grail," one of the people said. "They literally wanted it to be an engine where I'm going to give you 100 resumes, it will spit out the top five, and we'll hire those." But by 2015, the company realized its new system was not rating candidates for software developer jobs and other technical posts in a gender-neutral way. That is because Amazon's computer models were trained to vet applicants by observing patterns in resumes submitted to the company over a 10-year period.

US SEEKS INFO OVER
MISSING SAUDI JOURNALIST

President Donald Trump increased pressure on Saudi Arabia on Wednesday to provide information on what happened to missing Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi, and said he wanted to get to the bottom of what he called "a very serious situation." In a fresh clue, a pro-government Turkish daily on Wednesday published preliminary evidence from investigators it said identified a 15-member Saudi intelligence team involved in Khashoggi's unexplained disappearance on Oct. 2. Pressure appeared to be building worldwide on close U.S. ally Saudi Arabia on the whereabouts of Khashoggi, a prominent critic of Saudi policies, who was last seen entering the Saudi consulate in Istanbul to get documents for his planned marriage. Khashoggi's Turkish fiancée, Hatice Cengiz, who was waiting outside, said he never reappeared. Turkish sources said they believe Khashoggi was killed inside the building and removed, allegations that Riyadh dismisses as baseless. Trump, in comments in the Oval Office, told reporters he had raised Khashoggi's case with Saudi Arabia "at the highest level" and more than once in recent days.

INJUNCTION BLOCKING
SKYNYRD FILM OVERTURNED

Surviving members of Lynyrd Skynyrd cannot block the release of a movie created with help from a former drummer, and which depicted the plane crash that killed the southern rock band's lead singer, a federal appeals court ruled on Wednesday. By a 3-0 vote, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Manhattan overturned a permanent injunction that had stopped Los Angeles-based Cleopatra Records Inc from distributing "Street Survivors: The True Story of the Lynyrd Skynyrd Plane Crash." The movie was partially based on the memories of Artimus Pyle, one of 20 survivors of the Oct. 20, 1977 crash of Lynyrd Skynyrd's touring plane in Mississippi. Lead singer Ronnie Van Zant and five others died. Lynyrd Skynyrd is known for the songs "Sweet Home Alabama" and "Free Bird," both recorded before the crash. While agreeing that Pyle could tell his own life story, the surviving members persuaded U.S. District Judge Robert Sweet in August 2017 after a non-jury trial that the movie, which cost $1.2 million to make, violated a 1988 consent decree governing the use of Lynyrd Skynyrd's name and history.

Hurricane Michael bashes Florida Panhandle

The hurricane is already becoming one of the fiercest in U.S. history.

van in Panama City for safer quarters in a hotel, only to see the electricity there go out. "Panama City, I don't know if there will be much left."

Hurricane Michael, the strongest storm to hit Florida in a quarter century and the third-most powerful ever to strike the U.S. mainland, roared into the state's Gulf coast on Wednesday with tree-snapping winds and towering waves that flooded whole beach towns.

Michael, whose rapid intensification as it churned north over the Gulf of Mexico caught many by surprise, made landfall early in the afternoon near Mexico Beach, about 20 miles southeast of Panama City in Florida's Panhandle region, with top sustained winds reaching 155 mph.

The storm came ashore as a Category 4 hurricane on the five-step Saffir-Simpson wind scale. Its sustained winds were just 2 mph shy of an extremely rare Category 5.

Causing major disruptions to oil and gas production in the Gulf even before its arrival, the storm was forecast to unleash waves as high as 14 feet above normal sea levels in some areas, the National Hurricane Center said.

"My God, it's scary. I didn't expect all this," said Bill Manning, 63, a grocery clerk who fled his camper

Only a couple of hours after Michael came ashore, floodwaters were more than 7.5 feet deep near Apalachicola on Florida's Panhandle, National Hurricane Center Director Ken Graham said.

In a Facebook Live post, Graham said Michael would lose some of its punch but retain hurricane-strength winds as it pushed inland to the Alabama-Georgia border.

Authorities had urged coastal residents in 20 Florida counties along a 200-mile stretch of shoreline to head to higher ground before the storm, but anyone who had not fled by Wednesday morning was told it was too late to evacuate.

Much of the affected area is rural and dotted with small tourist towns, beaches and wildlife reserves, as well as the state capital, Tallahassee.

Even before Michael made full landfall, it was whipping trees with its winds and flooding the town of Port St. Joe.

"It feels like you don't know when the next tree is going to fall on top of you because it's blowing so ferociously," said Port St. Joe Mayor Bo Patterson.

NYC to help make theaters more accessible for hearing-, visually impaired

GalaPro will change how hearing- and visually impaired audience members experience the theater.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

New York City theater shows are about to become more accessible to the hearing- and visually impaired communities thanks to a partnership between the city and the mobile app GalaPro.

The Mayor's Office of Media and Entertainment (MOME) announced on Wednesday a partnership with GalaPro to install the company's software in qualifying Off Broadway, not-for-profit and independent New York City theaters.

GalaPro is already available in some Broadway theaters, and the app makes the performances more accessible for deaf, hard of hearing, low vision and blind attendees by providing audio descriptions or readable captions via their smartphones.

MOME will provide up to $100,000 to cover the cost of installing GalaPro software in qualifying New York City theaters. The software uses voice recognition technology tailored to live performances in order to display real-time closed-captioning, amplification and translation to smartphones and tablets (as well as audio descriptions for visually impaired audience members).

The city says that this technology will "revolutionize the theatergoing experience." More than 185,000 New Yorkers are hard of hearing, according to American Community Survey data.

"New York City is world-renowned for its theatrical offerings, from Broadway to Off Broadway," said Julie Menin, city commissioner of media and entertainment, in a statement. "We are delighted to partner with GalaPro and the city's theatrical community to ensure that the theatergoing experience is available and enjoyable to all New Yorkers, regardless of their abilities."

GalaPro has already been installed in all 17 Shubert theaters, all Roundabout theaters on and off Broadway, Lincoln Center's Vivian Beaumont Theater, the Lyric Theatre, and some Nederlander venues. Playwrights Horizons will be the first theater to participate in this city-backed initiative.

New York City theaters will continue to offer special performance dates for the deaf and hard of hearing communities, which use American Sign Language interpreters.

For audience members to use GalaPro in a New York City theater, they will have to be on their cellphone during a performance. The company says this won't be too much of a distraction to other patrons, though, because the app emits no backlight (the captions appear in either pink or gray) and the smartphone or tablet device must be set to airplane mode and use a dedicated closed Wi-Fi network.

GalaPro also offers language translation as part of its goal to break down "language, cultural and even physical barriers" so that live performances can be enjoyed by anyone. Audience members who use the GalaPro language translation at a New York City theater, rather than just the free closed-captioning or audio description, will need to pay a small fee.

New York City is one of the most walkable cities in the world, but there's been a decades-long dream that has yet to come to fruition: the Manhattan Waterfront Greenway, which would be a 32.5-mile continuous loop around the island.

"It's a compelling vision that would expand park space along the forgotten edge of our city," Mayor Bill de Blasio said in a report shared exclusively with Metro. "Imagine if you could go all the way around Manhattan on foot or on a bike and experience the island in its entirety."

New Yorkers may not have to imagine but see for themselves in a few short years as the report, from the mayor's administration, the NYC Economic Development Corporation and Departments of Transportation and Parks, gives recommendations for completing the Manhattan Waterfront Greenway, which would link more than 1,000 acres of open space from Inwood to Battery Park via a $250 million investment.

To complete the Manhattan Waterfront Greenway, the city needs to "close the loop"; the greenway, which ends at East 61st Street, is

Pair of hot-button issues dominate Kavanaugh's first case on the Supreme Court bench

GETTY IMAGES

The new justice's first case deals with the intersection of two contentious social-justice issues.

Newly sworn-in Supreme Court justice Brett Kavanaugh is facing two hot-button issues in his first case on the bench: criminal sentencing and gun control.

Kavanaugh's first day on the court was Tuesday, when he began hearing arguments in Stokeling v. United States. The case concerns mandatory minimum sentencing under a 1984 federal law, the Armed Career Criminal Act. The law requires a 15-year minimum sentence for firearm offenders who have three prior serious or violent felony convictions. The court will decide what constitutes a "serious or violent felony" under the act.

Kavanaugh is expected to give the Supreme Court a reliable 5-4 conservative majority. He was sworn in on Saturday by Chief Justice John Roberts and former Associate Justice Anthony Kennedy, for whom he clerked 25 years ago. A White House ceremony was held Monday night, in which President Trump erroneously said that Kavanaugh had been "proven innocent" of sexual-assault allegations levied at him by Christine Blasey Ford.

The allegations — that Kavanaugh drunkenly assaulted Ford in high school — led to an emotional day of Senate testimony by Kavanaugh and Ford, two weeks of controversy, and a reopened FBI investigation that many Democrats found too limited to be legitimate.

Kavanaugh was ultimately confirmed by the Senate, 50-48.

Kavanaugh was seated on the far right side of the bench Tuesday, next to Justice Elena Kagan, who hired him to teach at Harvard Law School when she was dean. The school recently said that Kavanaugh will not be returning to teach there.

The second case Kavanaugh heard concerns an equally contentious issue: immigration. Today, the justices heard arguments about which undocumented immigrants can be detained during deportation proceedings. The case involves an immigrant who has a prior criminal record but is no longer being held.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

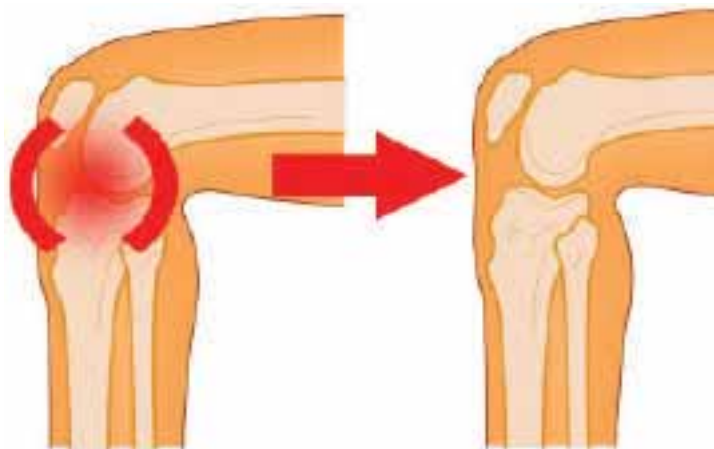

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

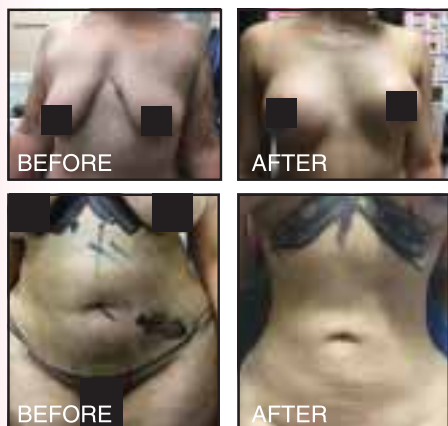

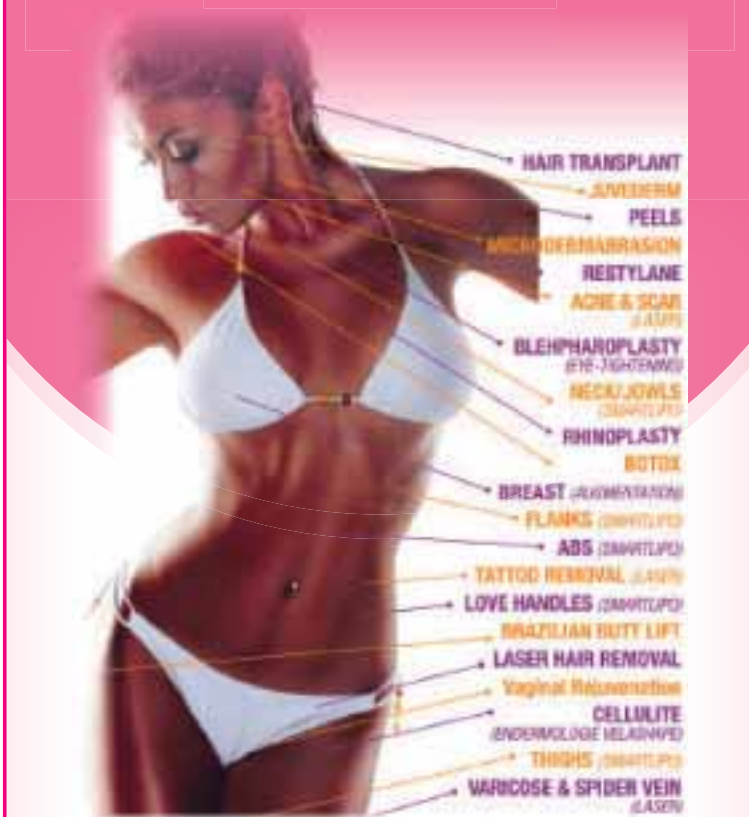

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Flight delayed after woman brings emotional support squirrel on airplane who boarded Frontier Airlines Flight 1612 with an emotional support squirrel, the Associated Press reported.

Police were called to remove the Frontier Airlines passenger and her squirrel.

Tuesday night's Orlando to Cleveland flight was delayed for two hours.

The passenger had reportedly noted in her reservation that she was bringing an emotional support animal on board but failed to indicate what kind of animal it was. Rodents, the airline says, are prohibited from flying. (This includes squirrels.)

Emotional support animals provide therapeutic benefits to people struggling with their mental health. These companions come in many forms, but airlines have cracked down on policies regarding which types can fly on planes.

On Tuesday, police had to remove a woman

A policy change to Frontier Airlines guidelines states that flights will only allow emotional support dogs or cats. It doesn't accept "unusual or exotic animals" including but not limited to rodents, reptiles, insects, hedgehogs, rabbits, sugar gliders, non-household birds or improperly cleaned and/or animals with foul odor."

effective Nov. 1, was announced prior to Tuesday's incident.

"On flight 1612 from Orlando to Cleveland yesterday evening, a passenger boarded the aircraft with a squirrel saying it was an emotional support animal," a Frontier Airlines rep tells Metro. "The passenger noted in their reservation that they were bringing an emotional support animal but it was not indicated that it was a squirrel. Rodents, including squirrels, are not allowed on Frontier flights.

"The passenger was advised of the policy and was asked to deplane," the rep continues. "When she refused to deplane, Orlando police were called and everyone was deplaned so police could deal with the passenger. Police eventually escorted the passenger off the aircraft and returned her to the main terminal.

"Prior to this incident, on Oct. 1, Frontier announced a new policy for emotional support animals and trained service animals that brings us into alignment with the rest of the airline industry."

Back in January, a passenger was denied access to her scheduled United Airlines flight out of Newark when she tried to bring an emotional support peacock on the plane.

"This animal did not meet guidelines for a number of reasons, including its weight and size," a United representative told CNBC. "We explained this to the customer on three separate occasions before they arrived at the airport."

James Murdoch in line to replace Musk as Tesla chairman

GETTY IMAGES

Outgoing Twenty-First Century Fox Inc. Chief Executive James Murdoch is the lead candidate to replace Elon Musk as Tesla Inc. chairman, the Financial Times reported on Wednesday, citing two people briefed on the discussions.

Tesla has until Nov. 13 to appoint an independent chairman of the board, part of settlements reached last month between Tesla, Musk and U.S. regulators in the wake of Musk tweeting in August that he had secured funding to take the company private.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, which said the statement was fraudulent, allowed the billionaire to retain his role as CEO while stripping him of his chairmanship and imposing a penalty of $20 million on each party.

Murdoch, who is a non-executive director of Tesla, has signaled he wants the job, the report said.

The son of Fox mogul Rupert Murdoch, he joined Tesla's board in July 2017 after years of work with media companies. He has no experience in manufacturing and has never led a company that makes cars or electric vehicles.

Murdoch could not immediately be reached for comment. Tesla did not immediately respond to a request for comment. Twenty-First Century Fox declined to comment.

Earlier this year, leading U.S. proxy advisers Glass Lewis & Co. and Institutional Shareholder Services, and union-affiliated investment adviser CtW Investment Group, had recommended investors cast votes "against" James Murdoch as a Tesla director at the company's annual meeting held on June 5.

While the latter cited a lack of relevant experience and a "troubled history as an executive and director," both proxy firms warned that Murdoch already served on too many boards.

Murdoch currently serves on the boards of Twenty-First Century Fox and News Corp. He stepped down from the board of Sky Plc on Tuesday following the completion of Comcast Corp.'s takeover of the broadcaster.

Glass Lewis research director Courteney Keatinge said in a telephone interview on Wednesday that while Murdoch's departure from Sky could alleviate some concerns, the Tesla chairmanship would still require a big time commitment as the company faces pressures on many fronts.

"I would still have reservations about the time he would be able to allot to this," Keatinge said, referring to the possibility of Murdoch as Tesla chairman. According to the FT report, external options were still being considered.

Murdoch is set to be succeeded by his brother Lachlan Murdoch as Twenty-First Century Fox chief executive officer, after the media group completes the sale of the bulk of its assets to Walt Disney.

Tesla faces a crucial moment as it struggles to produce its Model 3 sedan in large volume and deliver it quickly to customers amid an ongoing cash crunch that has concerned some analysts. Musk has vowed that the loss-making company will be profitable and cash flow-positive in its third and fourth quarters.

The SEC sued Musk on Sept. 27, alleging that a series of "false and misleading" tweets he made in August about potentially taking Tesla private constituted securities fraud. The parties settled two days later.

Under terms of the settlement, Musk is not permitted to be re-elected to the chairman post for three years. Tesla is also required to appoint two new independent directors to its board.

With U.S. stock markets broadly lower, Tesla shares pared losses to trade down 1.8 percent at $257.96 shortly before the close on Wednesday.

WAIT A MINUTE

You know what's annoying? Subway riders who get up from their seats and book it to the door – before the train has even arrived at the station. Nobody wants to miss their stop, but trying to squeeze through a crowded train in motion is a recipe for disaster. Whatever happened to patience? Everyone's got to get somewhere. There's no need to push through others, many of whom are getting off at the same stop as you. The only thing worse is people who try to get on a train before letting the people already on exit, but that's a grumble for another day.

Head back to the '60s with Jon Hamm this weekend. ALL PHOTOS KIMBERLEY FRENCH / TWENTIETH CENTURY FOX

'Bad Times' with Drew Goddard

The writer and director opens up about his '60s set crime epic.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

Over the last decade, Drew Goddard has been one of the few filmmakers to avoid superheroes and sequels and still get mainstream movies made.

He has written "Cloverfield," "World War Z" and "The Martian," as well as writing and directing "The Cabin in the Woods," which have made over $1.4 billion combined while costing just over $353 million to make. So it is little surprise that, considering his seemingly innate ability to recognize and make what moviegoers want to see, 20th Century Fox greenlit the 1969 set crime noir "Bad Times at the El Royale," which revolves around a priest (Jeff Bridges), a vacuum cleaner salesman (Jon Hamm), a mysterious hippie (Dakota Johnson) and a singer (Cynthia Erivo) checking into a novelty hotel, all with their own ulterior motives.

But rather than admitting to possessing some sort of cinematic clairvoyance, Goddard says, "Every movie I have ever made has felt like a bad idea at the time."

"I remember when we tried to make 'Cloverfield,' people thought it was insane. Same with 'The Martian.' I have always tried to write and make something I wanted to watch," says Goddard. "I have always been lucky in that regard. With this, I just wanted to make a big ensemble movie about the '60s and have some fun with it. I just trusted that if I wanted to do it other people would want to do it and all of the studios were excited by it."

But how did Goddard get started on and develop "Bad Times at the El Royale"?

"It started with the very simple attitude, 'Make the movie you would want to watch.' I love crime cinema and fiction. I have intoxicated with film noir all of my life and I just wanted to play around with it. It started with that," says Goddard. "It started with the simple concept of a hotel on the border of California and Nevada on one night in 1969 and what if a whole bunch of disreputable characters checked in at the same time. What kind of chaos would then unfold and then I just let the characters guide the story."

"I don't try to be bold or not be bold. It is all instinct I suppose. It is important when you are being an artist to be fearless and not be afraid to fail," he adds. "I just want to make a story that I haven't seen before and then see where the characters take me. That tends to lead to good results."

"Bad Times at the El Royale" opens Oct. 12.

Chris Hemsworth has another shirtless moment in "Bad Times at the El Royale."

Jeff Bridges also stars in the new crime epic.

The latest adaptation of the Shirley Jackson classic features an all-star cast. ALL PHOTOS STEVE DIETL/NETFLIX

Michiel Huisman on the true horror of 'The Haunting of Hill House'

The "Game of Thrones" alum talks about the new Netflix adaptation of the Shirley Jackson horror classic.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

Several years have passed since Daenerys Targaryen (Emilia Clarke) sailed for Westeros in "Game of Thrones" season 6, leaving her then-lover, Daario Naharis (Michiel Huisman) behind. Whether the latter will reappear in the hit HBO program's final season remains to be seen. Yet that doesn't mean the Dutch actor hasn't been keeping busy.

On Friday, he joins an impressive ensemble cast in Netflix's "The Haunting of Hill House," the latest adaptation of the acclaimed 1959 gothic horror by author Shirley Jackson. Two films, both titled "The Haunting," have tried to tell the psychologically dense tale. With Huisman's new 10-episode series, however, it seems simple tricks like jump scares have been traded in for a much deeper and unrelenting sense of dread.

"I thought that wrapping the scares in more of a psychological drama would be very interesting," says Huisman. "Our show plays with the idea that, for the longest time, we really don't know whether everything we see and experience is only happening in the minds of our characters, or if it's actually the power of a building. In this case, the Hill House."

In the new series, Huisman plays Steven Crain, the oldest of the Crain children who famously survived living in the titular haunted house. He has largely moved past his family's traumas by cashing in on the experience by becoming an acclaimed author. In a sense, he has betrayed his family by selling himself (and them) out.

Get ready for a scare this weekend.

"He's basically with his back against the wall," says Huisman. "He finally has everything he has ever wanted — the career, the house, all of it. But in order to achieve all of that, he basically had to sell out by writing a book about their childhood trauma. As a result, his brothers and sisters hate him for it."

This family dynamic is a new edition to the "Hill House" story, for aside from giving the surname to the man who built the house, Jackson's novel doesn't explore this particular topic. Instead, the Netflix series owes this contribution (and many others) to its creator, Mike Flanagan, who previously wrote and directed the horror films "Oculus," "Hush" and "Gerald's Game."

"On most of the TV shows I've worked on, there's either a different director for every episode or three or four directors who do the show in blocks," Huisman explains. "When you have one director doing everything as Mike did, it all of a sudden becomes something different. It's like you're making one long movie. Basically. It's like a 10-hour movie, and it gives a filmmaker like Mike the opportunity to give it his unique signature."

The actor admits that this is the first time he has ever experience a production like "Hill House," on which Flanagan not only wrote and directed, but also served as executive producer and editor.

"It's not unique, but this was the first time for me," Huisman says of the series' leader before stifling a laugh. "It's a lot for anyone to do. I mean, I do not understand how this guy pulled it off without dying of espresso and pizza. That, and lots of candy."

"The Haunting of Hill House" debuts Friday on Netflix.

5 Coffee trends you need to know

Ahead of this weekend's New York Coffee Festival, we take a look at the trends driving the coffee world.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

Is coffee good for you in 2018? The science swings back and forth, but right now we're being told to "drink coffee, live forever." Good thing the New York Coffee Festival returns Oct. 13-14, bringing all the hot new coffee trends with tastings, product demos, a latte art competition, coffee cocktails and lots more java-themed activities.

The New York Coffee Festival started in 2015 as a "very raw event," according to founder Jeffrey Young, but still welcomed 6,000 coffee fans. In 2018, he expects more than 12,000 people to pack the Metropolitan Pavilion, with something for everyone from casual sippers to self-confessed coffee nerds. "New York is super intense," he says. "There is a huge amount of curiosity."

All that curiosity has been feeding some serious innovation. We rounded up the biggest coffee trends driving the java business right now.

Fifth-wave coffee has arrived

The debate over whether or not Starbucks has been good for independent coffee shops is ongoing. But what creating hordes of new coffee drinkers has done is create a market for a more serious kind of coffee bar. "Four years ago, we were still very much at the end of what we call the third-wave coffee culture — that sort of grungy, very raw coffee scene, different from the chain market," says Young.

The first of the polished and professional boutique cafes like La Colombe, Devoción, Birch and Stumptown were just beginning to pop up, which have grown into mini-chains and even spawned high-end outlets like Industry City's Ex-

Cold Brew Crushie
TOBY'S ESTATE COFFEE

traction Lab with its $18 coffees, a trend Young calls fifth-wave coffee culture: "highly sophisticated environments that meet the needs of millennials, more minimalist and more focused on high-quality coffee."

Alternative milks

Nut milks are so 2017. This year's hottest alternative milk trend is oat milk, and it deserves the hype. Oats need much less water and pesticides to grow than soybeans and almonds, its texture is closer to dairy, and it is higher in fiber and protein than other nut milks. Its sudden popularity took manufacturer Oatly by surprise, causing periodic shortages this spring and summer. But don't worry: The company is in the process of boosting production by 1,250% year-on-year. Haven't tried it yet (or can't find it)? Oatly will be at the festival, so you can get it straight from the source.

Coffee gets seasonal

The Pumpkin Spice Latte may be basic, but it's undeniably loved. And cafes have finally realized that seasonal beverages don't have to be limited to fall. This summer, Toby's Estate Coffee combined two trends with the Cold Brew Crushie, a slushie of cold brew, half-and-half, whole milk and cane sugar, topped with whipped cream, sprinkles and a cookie straw. And since summer doesn't seem to be taking the hint quite yet, even though Toby's has rolled out their fall flavors, you can try the Crushie at their carnival-themed New York Coffee Festival booth.

"We put a lot of thought and development in releasing unique seasonal beverages, and think that seasonality is becoming increasingly appreciated in the world of coffee," says Allie Cara, director of education at Toby's Estate.

Bartenders are jonesing

Coffee is turning up on more and more bar menus. Whether it's a taste acquired during the leaner times of the recession, the rising popularity of bitter flavors in cocktails, or just wanting to lure coffee lovers with a familiar flavor, cold brew and espresso are becoming part of the bartender's toolkit — as is coffee liqueur.

Chief among the new crop of alcoholic java products is Mr Black, a liqueur made with three types of coffee beans, vodka, sugar and water. Using a neutral spirit showcases the coffee, explains managing founder Tom Baker: "Our low sugar and very high concentration and complexity make Mr Black absolutely cocktail ketchup for dark spirits like rye, mezcal and amari."

Try Mr Black at its cocktail booth, where they'll be mixing up an espresso martini.

New flavors and textures

The cold-brewing method opened up the flavor profiles expected by coffee drinkers, which Young sees as supporting entirely new coffee drinks like sparkling cascaras, a soda-like beverage made with the cherry of the coffee bean. Baristas are also continuing to experiment with carbonation, especially draft and nitro coffees — even Dunkin' Donuts is doing it.

Dead Rabbit reveals its secrets

The crew behind one of the world's best cocktail bars lay out the secrets of their success for anyone to follow in "Mixology & Mayhem."

EVA KIS

The Dead Rabbit has won pretty much every major accolade of the bar world since opening in November 2012, including World's Best New Cocktail Bar the very next year and Best Bartender for co-founder Jack McGarry. The awards haven't stopped since, and anyone who's tried to get inside and see what all the well-deserved fuss is about knows it's standing-room only — if you can even get inside — every night of the week.

So how did they do it? How did two Guinness-loving guys from Northern Ireland build an immediately successful cocktail bar in Lower Manhattan? The answer to that and any other question you could possibly have is in the new book "The Dead Rabbit Mixology & Mayhem," coming out Oct. 30.

Written by co-founders McGarry and Sean Muldoon and beverage director Jillian Vose, the book collects 100 detailed recipes of their award-winning cocktails — get ready to learn a lot about infusions, syrups and a produce aisle's worth of fruits and vegetables.

Beyond the recipes, "Mixology & Mayhem" lays out the process that built the Dead Rabbit, from how the staff works together to create the drinks to how the menus — which change completely every six months — are themed and designed.

"We want to tell the story of what goes on behind the scenes of the menus and the drinks: how the drinks got their names, the training, what goes into the staff experimentation sessions, the whole process from beginning to end," says Muldoon. "I want people to understand the work and thought that goes into it, the research element that goes into it, just to realize the level of detail and attention."

The book also includes all six chapters of The Dead Rabbit's current menu series, a graphic novel set in the 1970s starring The Rabbit, a character based on the leader of the Dead Rabbits gang that used to own Lower Manhattan.

Expect a new adventure with the next menu: "We're gonna bring him into the current day, make it a mad, twisted world," says Muldoon. "It's gonna become a bit weird."

Going 'Solo'

"Free Solo" is now in theaters. NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC/JIMMY CHIN

“Free Solo” star Alex Honnold shares his favorite places to climb around the world.

matthew.juul@metro.us

Rock climbing isn't for the faint of heart, especially if you plan on scaling a mountain without any ropes or harnesses. However, if you're Alex Honnold, it's just a typical day at work.

The acclaimed climber — who always seems to keep his cool — is the subject of the new documentary, "Free Solo," which chronicles his historic ascent up El Capitan in Yosemite National Park. Honnold is the only person to ever climb the towering formation "free solo"-style, without safety gear.

"That's one of the best days of my life," Honnold says of his journey up the "big frickin' wall." "Watching in all its glory on the big screen is kind of amazing."

For anyone who wants to get into climbing, Honnold suggests starting out at a climbing gym, a place he called home for eight years before tackling the outdoors. He also encourages beginners to hone their technique and work on their skills prior to making the leap to more adventurous climbs.

"Anyone who's even remotely interested in climbing, I would encourage them to go to the climbing gym and try," says Honnold. "And I always tell beginners to focus on their footwork, focus on their technique and body position, how they move as opposed to just being strong. It's all about learning how to be a good climber, how to move well."

Once you've mastered the basics, you might want to plan a trip to one of Honnold's favorite climbing locations around the globe. Just make sure to stay safe and use the appropriate gear, especially if you're a beginner.

Patagonia

Honnold has a lot of love for the beautiful Patagonia region.

“Doing the Fitz Traverse with Tommy Caldwell in Patagonia ... Basically we climbed these seven summits in Argentina. It was amazing,” he says. “It was like a four-and-a-half-day back-packing trip with Tommy, except that it’s up vertical rock faces for four days. It was really cool.

"In the same place, I did a traverse at these other four summits behind that with another partner, Colin Hayley ... the Torre Traverse, in a day, and that was also [a] big adventure," Honnold adds. "I like climbs that provide a big experience where at the end you're like, 'Whoa. I can't believe we did that.'"

Yosemite National Park

Of course, Yosemite is another favorite, but it's definitely not suited for newbies to the game.

"Yosemite is one of the best climbing areas in the world, hands down," says Honnold. "And it's an American treasure. It's a really special place. But to really appreciate Yosemite, I feel like you have to be not an experienced climber, but have some degree of skill, just because it's big walls."

Northeast U.S.

While the West Coast-based climber doesn't do too much exploring in the northeast, he does have a few suggestions for adventurers in our neck of the woods, such as the Shawangunk Mountains, the Adirondacks and Rumney.

WERE BUILT INCORRECTLY

@JoePantorno

Expectations could not have been much higher for the New York Yankees heading into the 2018 season.

After trading for Miami Marlins slugger and reigning National League MVP Giancarlo Stanton, they were on the cusp of seeing the new generation of Bash Brothers alongside Aaron Judge, though this edition would be in the Bronx instead of Oakland. Home run records were expected to quake and collapse under the Yankees' might as the two 50-home-run hitters from 2017, along with Gary Sanchez and Didi Gregorius, were going to make regular-season games look like batting practice.

Stanton mashed 38, and an injury-riddled Judge along with Gregorius added 27. Not prolific, but powerful nonetheless.

But there was so much that came from unlikely sources. Rookies Gleyber Torres and Miguel Andujar added 24 and 27, respectively, while Aaron Hicks tied Andujar.

Sanchez, in a heinous offensive season, still put up 18 dingers while batting .186.

Then there was Luke Voit, who was acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals in August and mashed 14 home runs in just 39 games.

In total, the Yankees belted 267 round-trippers in 2018, setting a new MLB record previously held by the 1997 Seattle Mariners (264). That's a terrifying offense to face in the postseason as the Yankees put up their first 100-win season in nine years.

Yet New York's season ended in the ALDS after falling to the Boston Red Sox in four games, which further suggests that this team was built incorrectly.

Here's two easy reasons why I say that.

1. HOME RUNS DON'T WIN CHAMPIONSHIPS ...

Everyone digs the long ball. It brings excitement to a game that is trying to resonate with a younger generation while putting butts in the seats. However, it is historically proven that it doesn't necessarily equate to winning championships.

Including the 2018 Yankees, the 10 teams

Aaron Judge and power don't win titles alone, even for the Yanks. GETTY IMAGES which hit the most home runs during a single season in MLB history have not won a championship. In fact, none of those teams even made it to a World Series.

We've heard this saying a million times: "You live by the home run, you die by the home run."

And that's just how the Yankees met their end. Analytics has taken over as the Yankees formed a team built for optimal power rather than clutchness, which can't be quantified. On numerous occasions during the ALDS, Bronx Bombers came to the plate in big situations just needing singles or productive outs and it could not be done. The Yankees didn't have a single qualifying player rank within the league's top 25 in on-base percentage, a stat that ERA from 1.98 to 3.39. He came up empty in Game 3 of the ALDS, where he was tagged for six runs on seven hits in three-plus innings of work, though Boone mismanaged the entire situation.

Masahiro Tanaka and CC Sabathia were inconsistent while Sonny Gray was deemed unfit to even make the playoff roster after unsuccessful stints in the rotation and the bullpen.

It forced general manager Brian Cashman to trade for J.A. Happ, who went 7-0 with a 2.69 ERA in 11 starts with the Yankees and was considered their postseason ace as he was given the ball for Game 1 of the division series. He came up empty when it mattered most as he gave up five runs in two innings.

Even with that big-time offense, you're playing a dangerous game when you think you can simply outscore your opponents every night. Obviously, it backfired this October.

Don't expect to see Sabathia or Gray in New York next season. If Cashman can come up with an ace or two this winter to round out the rotation, the Yankees will be in much better shape considering they already have the league's best bullpen.

should be valued far more than power if you want to build a complete team.

Look what happened when the home runs dried up. Only Judge and Stanton hit home runs in the ALDS and the Yankees scored just four runs in their final two games.

Round-trippers are nice, but they're even nicer when they're not the entire foundation of an offense.

2. ... BUT PITCHING DOES

The Achilles heel of the Yankees was starting pitching in 2018. We knew that coming in, but it wasn't expected to be this bad.

After a solid first half where he was gaining Cy Young consideration, Luis Severino imploded as a 5.67 ERA in his final 14 starts catapulted his

The Powerful (and little known) Back Pain Treatment Used By Smart New Yorkers Who Don't Want Back Surgery or Opioid Drugs

NEW YORK CITY - A major back pain relief opportunity is at hand. But if you are interested, you must act quickly.

Here is why: Back pain ruins lives... and puzzles doctors.

You go through so many exams and tests... and treatments... and only end up suffering and frustrated.

And everyone is quick to say they have the "new breakthrough solution."

Am I right?

Well, the fact of the matter is... treating back pain is difficult. But advances in modern medical science and technology have created a treatment that has gotten great results with countless back pain sufferers who had tried everything else. Many had given up hope.

This treatment is called:

"Radiofrequency Neurotomy." RF for short. And here's how it works...

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your back or neck and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves delivered to these nerves under advanced precision medical imaging to target the damaged areas... done right in their own clinic without intimidating, expensive hospitals or surgical centers ... to "block" the painful nerve flow.

Two steps in the formula are performed. First, a test or diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function. If this first "test" procedure is successful, RF Neurotomy or "Radiofrequency" will be performed for longer term relief.

NOT just the Treatment alone that's the key ingredient.

You see, the real secret is the formula. And that again starts with a proper screening evaluation to determine if you are a good candidate and may achieve the results you are looking forward to. This is always Step number one.

And the best part about this screening is... It's FREE

FREE screening available for powerful back pain treatment

This screening will give you so much relief just knowing what is going on... and what your best options are.

That's right. NYC Pain MD offers this first step screening at no cost to patients. The only problem is... they often get over 100 inquiries a day as they also treat almost every painful area and joint. Sometimes it's hard to get through. If you don't get through to someone when you call... keep calling... or leave a message... it will be well worth it.

But that's just the first step

After your free screening, if you qualify, the doctors will discuss the best treatment plan for you in a way that you will understand completely. Not all complex "doctor talk"...

This may be one... or a combination of the advanced medical treatments offered at NYC Pain MD.

Everything will be explained and all your questions will be answered. And even better:

You will be given all this At NO COST. NYC Pain MD doc's are not like used car salesman. They will not be giving you a sales pitch. They are doctors and will give you the best possible options to help your pain and offer to help you the best way they can. In fact, with up to 100 inquiries a day from patient's looking for relief, it's often hard to even get a treatment spot.

You should also know this: While NYC Pain MD cannot help everyone...

so many have gotten the pain relief they were looking for.

One of the reasons they offer those first step free screenings, is because it has opened the door to so many people to get help that they never would have otherwise.

At the very least, you will finally have some direction and a plan. And... whether you have the best, worst or no insurance at all, NYC Pain MD programs can be made affordable to everyone.

They do not want insurance issues... or not being rich or famous... to keep you away if you are suffering in pain.

How To Schedule Your Risk-Free No-Obligation Screening Evaluation

There is a whole lot more I could say about their treatments etc... but this space is limited and that's best left for you and the doctors to discuss in person.

So... if you are even remotely interested ... take the first step and give them a call at 877-245-9252 and ask for your free screening.

One more thing... We often get over 100 calls in a single day. For that reason, if when you call you do not get a live scheduling coordinator, make sure to leave your name, number and time of your call on our voicemail. They will get back to you as soon as possible. Again, the number to call is 877-245-9252. More info at: painmdny.com/back-pain

REPEATED-DOSE INTRAVENOUS KETAMINE STUDY FOR PTSD

Have you experienced a life-threatening or traumatic event?
Since the trauma, have you:

- Had nightmares or flashbacks? Felt jumpy or anxious?
- Tried to avoid thinking or talking about it?
- Become less connected with people around you, or less interested in activities you used to enjoy?
- Blamed yourself for the trauma or what happened afterwards?

If so, you may be suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder or PTSD. The Mood and Anxiety Disorders Program at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai in New York City is conducting a study of repeated-dose ketamine.

Ketamine has been used for many years as an anesthetic medication, and at lower doses may help alleviate PTSD symptoms. You may be eligible to participate if you have PTSD and are 18-65 years old.

Participation involves a thorough psychiatric and medical screening. The study lasts for at least 4 weeks. You will be compensated for your time.

2 Things to watch for when Giants host Eagles tonight

The two struggling NFC East opponents meet in primetime tonight.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

To put things lightly, the NFC East has been nothing short of mediocre so far in 2018 as the 2-2 Washington Redskins lead the division heading into Week 6.

Two division rivals, the New York Giants (1-4) and Philadelphia Eagles (2-3), get a new slate of NFL games starting Thursday night from MetLife Stadium in New Jersey as both teams try to get back to winning ways.

The Giants have lost two straight winnable games in the fourth quarter, to the New Orleans Saints and Carolina Panthers. Last week saw a Graham Gano 63-yard field goal as time expired relegate the Giants to a 33-31.

Philadelphia, the defending Super Bowl champions, are on a two-game losing streak of their own after sloppy losses to the Tennessee Titans and Minnesota Vikings.

Something has to give on Thursday night. Here are a few things you should keep an eye out for when it comes to the Giants.

ELI MUST PROVE HIMSELF

While he passed for over 300 yards for the first time this season against the Panthers in Week 5, Eli Manning's performance once again left plenty to be desired.

Two interceptions that were all on him in the third quarter stymied the Giants' comeback in Week 5, and the biggest offensive play of the game was created when Odell Beckham Jr. hit Saquon Barkley with a 57-yard pass for New York's opening touchdown.

There's no denying that Manning's better days are behind him, but the organization believed that he still had at least a couple good years left. It's the main reason why new general manager Dave Gettleman opted to draft Barkley instead of a quarterback this year. Against a division rival, Manning needs to come up with a big performance to get the Giants back in the division race and prove that he's still the man under center.

THE BECKHAM, BARKLEY SHOW

Giants fans got their first good look at just how good the offense can be when Beckham and Barkley are firing on all cylinders.

The Giants star receiver put up 131 receiving yards, a passing and a receiving score while Barkley became just the third rookie in NFL history to record 100 or more scrimmage yards in his first five games as a pro.

Beckham can thrash a weaker Eagles secondary given his ability to excel as either a slot receiver or outside threat. The Giants should take advantage of that and throw Beckham into as many different looks as possible against Philadelphia.

While their run defense is better, Barkley's dual-threat capabilities are going to ensure he sees plenty of the ball. With his ability to make tacklers miss, anything can happen from there.
